I would have to say, these past few years have been quite the whirlwind for me. I went from being a taekwondo mom (no soccer mom here :P), to a student myself, to a competitor, an instructor, competition coach, and now the owner of Maui Taekwondo & Hapkido Center. That is definitely not what five year old Jenn expected to be growing up. Although, I can confidently say that nothing has ever felt more right.

I was in my mid 20s when I started taekwondo, and somehow still had no idea who I was at the time. It didn't matter that I had a family, a career, bought a house, etc. I almost felt like I didn't quite have an individual identity. Taekwondo ended up not being just a sport for me. It ended up being a way of life. Sure, my body became stronger, but so did my mind. I held myself differently, I walked a little taller, I didn't just seem confident, I was. It has made all the difference in the way I deal with other people, and the way I treated myself. I always heard the phrase "you can do anything you put your mind to" but never quite fully believed it. Although, with a lot of practice (A LOT of practice) and hard work, I truly feel this is the case. Sure, natural talent helps, but the time and effort you put into everything makes all the difference.

I have to thank Master James Donald for all of this. I learned everything I know from him and keep learning from him every single day. He brought something out of me that I didn't know I had. The way he teaches, truly makes you excited to learn. He has been my biggest inspiration and support over the past few years and I can never thank him enough. I am forever grateful that he is my instructor.

Therefore, if I could do anything for your kids, I hope it is that I can spark the same passion for taekwondo within them. Whether they stay with us for a few months or many many years, that they take something positive from their experience with us. Thank you for sharing your children with us and for entrusting us to be apart of their journey.

Sincerely,

*Ms. Jenn
